Enactment of this legislation could cost the Senate $2,400 and the House of Representatives $4,800, ongoing from the General Fund beginning in FY 2027, for compensation and expenses of newly added legislators on the General Oversight Committee. Enactment could also cost the Office of Legislative Research and General Counsel $47,500, ongoing from the General Fund beginning in FY 2027, for one-quarter full-time equivalent personnel time to manage the increased workload; the office indicates it can absorb this cost. Should provisions of 63G-3-304.1 be found unconstitutional, enactment could increase ongoing costs to the Governor's Office for staff time to prepare for and attend public hearings. Whether the provisions will be found unconstitutional is unknown.

Notes on Notes

Fiscal explanations estimate the direct costs or revenues of enacting a bill. The Legislature uses them to balance the budget. They do not measure a bill's benefits or non-fiscal impacts like opportunity costs, wait times, or inconvenience. A fiscal explanation is not an appropriation. The Legislature decides appropriations separately.
